Four students from Monroe County were awarded scholarships by New River Community and Technical College Community and Technical College Foundation Inc. during the fall 2010 semester, according to an announcement by William J. Loope, vice president for institutional advancement and workforce education.
Marsha A. Bragg of Union earned the David B. McClung Memorial Scholarship given through the Greenbrier Valley Dental Society to promote and enable students pursuing careers in the healthcare industry.

Brooke N. Campbell of Gap Mills received the D. Reginald and Nelle C. Dixon Scholarship, which has been endowed to support and aid students pursuing a career in the hospitality industry.

Danielle L. Clarkson of Peterstown earned the Benjamin Fort Memorial Teacher Scholarship, endowed by Dr. and Mrs. Kyle Fort of Lewisburg in honor of Dr. Fort’s father in an effort to encourage and enable students who aspire to teaching careers.

Harley D. Rhodes of Sinks Grove received the Mary Louise and Jim Kilcollin Scholarship, endowed by Dr. and Mrs. Mark C. Kilcollin in memory of his parents.

The New River Community and Technical College Foundation Inc. is a nonprofit organization established to encourage and assist area residents to contribute and/or endow scholarships to aid students in the Greenbrier, Fayette, Mercer, Monroe, Nicholas, Pocahontas, Raleigh, Summers and Webster County area in achieving their educational goals.

Information on the foundation and how to establish a scholarship fund can be obtained by contacting William J. Loope, vice president of institutional advancement and workforce education, at (304) 929-5494 or through e-mail wloope@newriver.edu.

-end-