NEW RIVER OFFERS ONLINE INTRODUCTION TO QUICKBOOKS COURSE

New River Community and Technical College, in partnership with ed2go, is offering an online, non-credit Introduction to QuickBooks course. New sessions will begin Oct. 20 and Nov. 10.

QuickBooks is designed for the small to midsized business owner who enjoys Quicken's ease of use but prefers a more traditional approach to accounting. Students in this course will learn how this well-designed accounting program can make it a snap to set up a chart of accounts; reconcile a checking account; create and print invoices, receipts and statements; track payables, inventory and receivables; create estimates and generate reports.

This engaging and practical course is taught by Craig Power, a veteran adult educator and small business owner.

"QuickBooks is the single most popular accounting application for small businesses," says Power. "I'm not aware of any other accounting program that has been as successful at packing so many features into such an intuitive, easy-to-use interface."

Thanks to the power and convenience of communication across the Internet, his online classroom includes frequent, lively discussions. Students are able to interact not only with the instructor, but also with one another. "Bring your questions, ideas, tips, and suggestions," Power said. "We can all learn from one another."

Through well-crafted lessons, expert online instruction, and interaction with fellow students, participants in these courses gain valuable knowledge at their convenience. They have the flexibility to study at their own pace combined with enough structure and support to complete the course. And they can access the classroom 24/7 from anywhere with an Internet connection.

Class tuition is $99, and the course is open to the general public. To register, visit ed2go.com/newriver. For more information, call New River Community and Technical College at (304) 872-4520.
